Leadership Letter

Free Library of the 21st Century

As we move forward into the second decade of our ever-changing 21st-century world, the Free Library of Philadelphia remains committed to advancing literacy, guiding learning, and inspiring curiosity for all who come through our doors. We pride ourselves on providing the high-quality service that Philadelphians have come to expect and rely on in each one of our 54 branches, such as children's storytimes based on early literacy best practices, workshops for job seekers and entrepreneurs, and extensive research collections, as well as a wide selection of DVDs and bestsellers. At the same time, we are also looking towards our increasingly digital future and are excited to be expanding the Free Library's presence in the community—and the world—beyond our own walls.

We are especially proud of our new Free Library Hot Spots, located in several community centers throughout Philadelphia. Our Hot Spots are bringing internet access, computers, and trained assistants to neighborhoods in the city lacking free and reliable connections to technology. In a city where more than 46% of residents lack internet access at home, our Hot Spots are providing a truly crucial service. We opened our first Hot Spot in March 2011, and in just the few months they have been operating, more than 4,000 people have visited our four locations throughout Philadelphia!

In addition to expanding beyond its physical walls, the Free Library of the 21st Century is rapidly growing online, too, as freelibrary.org received more than 300 million hits this year! Skyrocketing interest in the Library's electronic resources—from ebooks and audiobooks to special digital databases—has driven record numbers of users to our website to download the latest bestsellers to their e-readers, learn a new language, and tune in to the nearly 700 author podcasts available at freelibrary.org. Offering both cutting-edge resources for our computer-savvy users and special training classes and personal assistance for those just venturing into the digital universe, the Free Library is proud to meet the diverse needs of Philadelphians in this technology-driven world.

The programs highlighted in the FY 2011 annual report offer just a glimpse into the phenomenal work that takes place each and every day at the Free Library of Philadelphia. We hope you enjoy reading about the many achievements of our hardworking staff and volunteers, and we hope that you visit us-in person or online-soon!

Year in Review

nearly 25,000 programs offered by the Free Library over the past year.

Free Library of Opportunity

• The Library's Books Aloud! program, which teaches adults how to introduce and foster literacy in the lives of young children, hosted 113 workshops for 4,425 school teachers, parents, and caregivers.

• LEAP, the Free Library's drop-in Literacy Enrichment After-school Program, continued to serve thousands of children and teenagers every weekday afternoon from September through June. In addition to homework assistance, LEAP offers computer literacy training, library skills workshops, and multicultural enrichment activities for students in grades 1 through 12. In FY 2011, LEAP served more than 70,000 school children.

• Parkway Central's Regional Foundation Center—a resource center for nonprofit organizations—hosted nearly 500 people for 14 dynamic events, including Proposal Writing, Create a 12-Week Major Gift Campaign, and Prospect Research Basics.

• Thanks to a generous grant from Weaver's Way Co-op, children participating in LEAP at David Cohen Ogontz Library were able to grow a small vegetable and flower garden, where they learned about different plants and made salads and coleslaw from their bountiful harvest!

• Bustleton Library offered 11 more community programs, 175 more adult programs, and 148 more programs for children and teens in FY 2011, including a new teen after-school group.

• Twice during FY 2011, Fumo Family Library offered a popular Smoking Cessation program series for more than 300 people, many of whom were new to the Library but have since become regular Library visitors!

• Through a partnership with the Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Delaware Valley, Haverford Library presented a special Debt Boot Camp series to help promote financial literacy.

• With the help of volunteers from Temple University, Lillian Marrero Library offered a series of English-asa-Second-Language classes that guickly became one of the branch's most in-demand programs.

• Northeast Regional Library held a successful business card exchange, welcoming more than 100 area professionals to the Library for this key networking opportunity.

• In partnership with the Center for Literacy, Nicetown-Tioga Library was able to offer weekly pre-GED classes.

• Overbrook Park Library hosted its first annual Back to School Bonanza, providing more than 25 school students with new supplies for the academic year, thanks to the branch's friends group.

• Paschalville Library's Job Readiness Center helped nearly 1,000 people polish their résumés, find and apply for jobs, and practice their interviewing skills, thanks to ongoing support from Lincoln Financial Foundation.

• Queen Memorial Library rearranged the layout of its Children's Department, which improved access to Library materials and helped increase overall circulation by an impressive 20%.

• With the help of a grant from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania's Department of Community and Economic Development, Walnut Street West Library purchased seven laptop computers for the many computer instruction programs they offer throughout the year.

The Free Library of Philadelphia saw a number of achievements throughout its 54-branch system in FY 2011, from increased circulation and computer use to innovative programming that brought many new users into the Library. Below is a selection of highlights from the

Free Library of Community

• Sundays on Stage, a series of cultural programs featuring live performances of music, storytelling, and dance by a variety of artists and entertainers, held 18 family programs this year, drawing 3,067 attendees. Sundays on Stage is made possible by funding from the Philadelphia City Institute Board of Managers.

• Through the Philadelphia Arts in Education Partnership, Blanche A. Nixon/Cobbs Creek Library welcomed artist Tremain Smith as the branch's "Artist in Residence," engaging many children and teens in arts-based literacy programs.

• Durham Library began several popular programming series, including "How to Make the Most of Your Library" online training classes for seniors and, for amateur poets and musicians, "Mantua on the Mike!"

• Computer use at Frankford Library rose by 35% in FY 2011. Similarly, Frankford Library is ranked fourth in the Free Library system for Wi-Fi use; laptop users often sit together and assist one another in the congenial space.

• Through a partnership with The Olney Community Collaborative organized by the North Fifth Street Revitalization Project, Greater Olney Library hosted a Career Boot Camp program series for job seekers as well as an Immigration Issues roundtable discussion for new Americans and community members interested in supporting them.

• Two staff members at Joseph E. Coleman Northwest Regional Library each received a Customer Service Award for their efforts in cleaning up a trash-strewn parking lot and for providing comprehensive programming in conjunction with Autism Awareness Month, respectively.

• In partnership with the community redevelopment group Mt. Airy USA, Lovett Memorial Library co-sponsored a six-week summer outdoor film series, which was widely enjoyed and well attended.

• McPherson Square Library hosted a thriving children's craft program series throughout the summer, which, coupled with a robust Summer Reading Program, attracted hundreds of young people to the Library.

• Thanks to the efforts of librarians at Roxborough Library, a library card registration campaign held at nearby Roxborough High School resulted in more than 200 students applying for library cards.

• More than 200 people attended the first annual Halloween "Boo-ling" Party held by the Torresdale Library.

• Wynnefield Library hosted a successful Computer Buddy Program, in which students from nearby Saint Joseph's University helped the Library's older patrons learn to use computers with one-on-one assistance.

• Wyoming Library partnered with nearby Feltonville Intermediate School to host monthly class visits, which centered on topics the students were studying for their social studies curriculum. And with the help of a Pine Tree Foundation grant, the Library was also able to host special programs for the students about these topics, including African American Civil War soldiers and Philadelphia-area Native American tribes.

Free Library of Discovery

• This year's Summer Reading program, Discover the World @ Your Library, engaged 58,109 children and teens with books and special events, including arts and crafts, dance demonstrations, and storytelling. Children tracked their progress with a special game board, earning stickers and prizes. Teens tracked their progress with an activity card; more participation increased their chances of winning a raffle prize. Thanks to co-lead sponsors Verizon and Wells Fargo, the Free Library was also able to give away 10,000 new books as prizes to Summer Reading participants.

• Bushrod Library hosted several exciting programs as part of the Philadelphia Science Festival, including the BioBus Laboratory on Wheels and CSI: Egypt.

• Circulation of Free Library materials at Cecil B. Moore Library increased by more than 30% in FY 2011!

• Haddington Library offered a wide array of special programming for teens, including a Teen Café, Wii gaming, and SAT Prep.

• Katharine Drexel Library successfully expanded its storytimes to include all children 18 months to 5 years old, while at the same time incorporating music, games, and play breaks into this popular program.

• Kingsessing Library presented an impressive schedule of 154 programs in FY 2011, including toddler storytimes, comic book workshops, and, in partnership with the Academy of Natural Sciences, an educational program featuring live animals!

• Logan Library hosted a variety of interactive and informative programs for teens, including a résumé writing workshop and a House of Cards competition!

• With the support of a Pine Tree Foundation grant, Richmond Library hosted a variety of educational and entertaining programs in FY 2011, including Mad Science, The Boy Who Cried Bully, Compost Community, and more.

• South Philadelphia Library presented several well-attended workshops for area adults on such diverse topics as working while disabled, health and nutrition, and container gardening.

• A major remodeling of the Children's Department at Whitman Branch created a wide open and welcoming space for storytimes and special programs for the Library's youngest users.

• Circulation of Library materials at Widener Library increased an impressive 34% in FY 2011.

Free Library of Celebration

The fifth annual Philadelphia Book Festival blossomed into a week-long event in FY 2011! Events for adults were held each evening from Monday, April 11 through Friday, April 15, and a big street fair featuring even more events for families and children was held on Saturday, April 16. The Festival drew approximately 19,000 people from throughout the region for this six-day celebration of books, music, and inspiration. Saturday Night Live and 30 Rock writer and star Tina Fey; National Public Radio's A Prairie Home Companion host Garrison Keillor; Printz Award-winning young adult author Walter Dean Myers; and National Book Award winner Kathryn Erskine all joined in the festivities.

• Andorra Library increased its LEAP programming by a staggering 732% and its LEAP attendance by 94% in FY 2011.

• Eastwick Library's program attendance rose an impressive 40% in the wake of such new programming as weekly pajama storytimes and outreach efforts throughout the community

• Preschool program attendance at Holmesburg Library increased a whopping 252% in FY 2011. Similarly, community program attendance at the branch increased an astonishing 527%!

• Kensington Library hosted a festive Summer Reading kick-off block party for more than 200 attendees, who enjoyed entertainment, games, cake, and more!

• Lucien E. Blackwell West Philadelphia Regional Library made the front page of the Philadelphia Tribune for the key role it played in helping a Philadelphia high school senior achieve academic success and become the valedictorian of her graduating class!

• Computer use at Oak Lane Library increased by an impressive 25% in FY 2011. Wireless use similarly increased by 10% over last fiscal year.

• Through the support of private individuals and its Friends group, Philadelphia City Institute Board of Managers received more than $35,000 in grant funds in FY 2011!

• Tacony Library hosted a hugely successful photography contest for teens, "Tacony in a Frame." The contest was featured in the Northeast Times and concluded with an awards ceremony and exhibition attended by 70 people.

• Circulation of materials at Thomas F. Donatucci. Sr. Library surpassed 116.000 items, a record for the branch in its 96 years of service!

• A teen patron of Wadsworth Library won the Northeast Division of the Young Adult Library Services Association's Wrestle Mania Reading Challenge! As a result, the branch received a $2,000 grant for the teen collection as well as several sets of books donated by major publishers.

• Computer use rose by 15% at Welsh Road Library in FY 2011.

Free Library of Great Conversations

• The Free Library's award-winning Author Events Series hosted 140 authors this year, drawing 25,600 people to the Parkway Central Library's Montgomery Auditorium. Noted historian David McCullough; Pulitzer Prize winner Annette Gordon-Reed; New York Times columnist David Brooks; and literary superstars Jonathan Franzen and Maxine Hong Kingston all joined in lively conversations at the Free Library.

• In its ninth consecutive year, One Book, One Philadelphia continued to educate and inspire thoughtful discussion between thousands of Philadelphians on issues of culture and identity with the featured selections, Sherman Alexie's War Dances and The Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian. More than 100,000 people participated in 115 One Book events, including book discussions, film screenings, craft workshops, and cultural events featuring the music and poetry of the Lenni Lenape.

• "The World at Your Door," a program series hosted by Central Senior Services, allowed attendees the opportunity to meet diplomats representing six nations and discuss current international events from a variety of perspectives at the Parkway Central Library.

• The eighth annual Field Family Teen Author Series hosted 2,560 students for 12 engaging teen programs throughout the Free Library system, which featured readings, discussions, and free books signed by the featured authors. Participating young adult authors included Philadelphia-based novelist Matthew Quick, former U.S. Poet Laureate Kay Ryan, and One Book, One Philadelphia featured author Sherman Alexie.

The Growth of the Digital Free Library

Computer and Internet Statistics

Total number of Website Hits Total number of Virtual Visits Public Computer Use in Libraries

In order to best serve its users in the 21st century, the Free Library added several new technology-based programs and services over the past fiscal year, both in person and online.

In FY 2011, the Free Library expanded beyond its walls to open six technology Hot Spots in several neighborhoods throughout the city. These Hot Spots offer free Wi-Fi, computers, a selection of Library materials, and a computer trainer on-hand to answer questions and help users refine their résumés, apply for jobs, and more. In a city where more than 46% of residents do not have internet access at home, these Hot Spots are providing a crucial service. The Hot Spots opened in March 2011, and in just four months, through June 2011, welcomed 4,070 people, 24 of whom found jobs as a direct result of the help they recieved at the Hot Spot! Generously funded by the John S. and James L. Knight Foundation and Broadband Technology Opportunities Program, Free Library Hot Spots are located at: Heavenly Hall Annex, the Cambodian Association of Greater Philadelphia, the Institute for the Development of African-American Youth, The Village of Arts and Humanities, Mercy Neighborhood Ministries, and Audenreid High School.

Also in FY 2011, the Free Library was awarded a significant grant from the Verizon Foundation as well as federal funds from the Library Services and Technology Act (LSTA) and the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) to support several technology-based initiatives. The Verizon Foundation grant allowed the Library to open Verizon Smart Technology Centers in six of its locations throughout the city. These Centers feature Smart Boards, computers, and a dedicated team of trainers to help engage school-age children in creative and educational after-school programs, as well as help new Americans master the English language through a variety of interactive programming. The federal funds from LSTA and IMLS will help the Library pilot a groundbreaking e-reader lending program in FY 2012, in which adults over the age of 50 will be able to check out e-readers—pre-loaded with a variety of books—as well as receive training on how to use them. With the help of these funds, the Free Library will become one of the largest urban public libraries to lend e-readers to its users.

In addition to these physical technology advancements, freelibrary.org continued to add to the myriad resources it makes available to Free Library cardholders 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The Library's collection of ebooks swelled to include more than 30,000 titles—from bestselling novels to comprehensive travel guides—becoming one of the most highly used and in-demand collections. The Library also added Freegal music service, in which users can download three free Sony music songs per week to their personal collections—and keep those tracks forever. And the Library's comprehensive and burgeoning series of free author podcasts continues to reach audiences around the world. These podcasts have been downloaded more than a million times at an average rate of 800 downloads per day. With such a dynamic online presence, it's no wonder that freelibrary.org is by far our busiest "branch"!

The Library's presence on social media continued to flourish in FY 2011 as well. In addition to establishing dedicated pages on FourSquare and Yelp, the Library stayed connected with thousands of people through its Facebook page, Twitter feed, and blog, which kept users up-to-date on the latest Library happenings as well as on news from the greater world of literature and information. The Free Library's Facebook fans grew an impressive 62%, from 3,600 in FY 2010 to 5,820 in FY 2011. And the Library's Twitter followers ballooned 71% over the course of the fiscal year, from 2,200 in FY 2010 to 3,765 in FY 2011!

As always, the Free Library is committed to advancing literacy, guiding learning, and inspiring curiosity for all who come through our "doors"—be they physical or digital.

Volunteers and Friends

Volunteers

The Free Library of Philadelphia is grateful to have such a committed group of volunteers dedicate thousands of hours of their time to help the Library advance literacy, guide learning, and inspire curiosity each day for all who come through our doors. In FY 2011, more than 1,700 volunteers helped hundreds of Author Events run smoothly; ensured that One Book, One Philadelphia supplies were distributed to thousands of teachers; and touched the lives of countless Philadelphians with their cheerful demeanor and helpful attitude. In addition, 116 work study students from seven area post-secondary schools provided 8,920 hours of service throughout the Library system. While the total number of volunteers decreased slightly from 2010, they dedicated 17,485 more hours of their time!

Friends of the Free Library of Philadelphia

Established in 1973, the Friends of the Free Library of Philadelphia is an independent, nonprofit organization whose mission is to advocate for the Free Library. Through 51 affiliate neighborhood chapters, the organization has more than 10,000 members and promotes cooperation and communication between Philadelphia's communities and the Free Library. Accomplishments and highlights of various Friends of the Free Library groups in FY 2011 include:

• Friends of Falls of Schuylkill Library secured historic designation for the branch in the Philadelphia Register of Historic Places. They also helped to fund a series of literacy and writing workshops for children and pre-teens and purchased additional materials for the library's collection.

• Friends of Fishtown Community Library received a $15,000 grant from the Penn Treaty Special Services District, which supported physical upgrades and provided funding for a diverse and dynamic array of programs in FY 2011, including The Art of Debt-Free Living, Hip Hop Dance, and more.

• Friends of Fox Chase Library obtained a grant from Fox Chase Bank to help purchase eight new laptops to support the library's Introduction to Computers classes that are held regularly throughout the year.

• Friends of Haddington Library sponsored a popular Teen Cafe' for the library's young adult users.

• Friends of Lawncrest Library celebrated their 35th anniversary in FY 2011! They also received a Philadelphia Activities Fund Grant to help the library assemble 50 Early Literacy tote bags—containing board books, educational materials, and library card applications—that were distributed to new parents throughout the neighborhood.

• Friends of Ramonita de Rodriguez Library secured an impressive $15,000 grant from SugarHouse Casino that helped the library provide additional programming, purchase materials for children's activities, and enrich its collection with many new books for children, teens, and adults.

Free Library Begins Phase One of Project to Enhance and Expand Parkway Central

In FY 2011, the Free Library successfully began the first phase of Parkway Central Library renovations as part of Building Inspiration—the plan to enhance and expand Parkway Central. These renovations mark the first time that this Beaux-Arts jewel of a building has been significantly restored since it was opened to the public in 1927.

With generous support from the Department of Community and Economic Development of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Parkway Central's stone façade was cleaned and re-pointed, many of its windows replaced, and its exterior staircases restored. The main vestibule was cleaned and restored along with its magnificent chandeliers. Years of wear have been removed from the building's entrance and façade, and it is an absolutely beautiful sight to see from Logan Circle.

Work during this first phase also included restoring and improving Shakespeare Park, directly across from Parkway Central's front doors. The newly replaced pavement, updated outdoor lighting, and fresh landscaping —including colorful flower beds and hardy perennials—make a spectacular and welcoming "front yard" for Parkway Central Library.

With generous support from the Annenberg Foundation, Parkway Central's Philbrick Popular Library also began undergoing an extensive upgrade in FY 2011. Carpet is being removed and the original marble floors are being fully restored; new seating, shelving, and window treatments are being added; the intricate plaster ceiling is being fully renewed; and energy efficient new lighting is being installed, inspired by some of the building's original fixtures. Look for a new lobby desk in FY 2012.

In FY 2012, in addition to completing the restoration of Philbrick Popular Library, the Free Library will embark on the next phase of Parkway Central renovations, which includes replacing the antiquated stacks system with modern compact shelving; renovating the 4th Floor meeting and event space; and refurbishing and expanding the Rare Book Department on the 3rd Floor.

Building inspiration: Enhancing the Parkway Central Campus is made possible by a combination of generous public and private support.

Background

Background

The Free Library of Philadelphia Foundation (the Foundation) functions primarily to secure federal, state, city, and private grants and contributions to expend on various library programs.

Agreement with Board of Trustees of the Free Library of Philadelphia

The Foundation entered into an agreement dated June 19, 1984, with the Board of Trustees of the Free Library of Philadelphia, an independent board of the City of Philadelphia (City or City Library) responsible for securing and expending City appropriations. Under this agreement, the Board of Trustees of the Free Library of Philadelphia maintains care and custody of the collections of the Foundation and makes all necessary operational decisions as to the management of the libraries and the collections of the Foundation. These financial statements reflect only the assets, liabilities, net assets, and changes in net assets of the Foundation and, accordingly, do not include any amount applicable to the financial position or changes in net assets of the City Library.

Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Basis of Accounting

The financial statements of the Foundation have been prepared on the accrual basis of accounting in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America and reflects all significant receivables, payables, and other liabilities.

Basis of Presentation

The Foundation reports information regarding its financial position and activities according to three classes of net assets: unrestricted net assets, temporarily restricted net assets, and permanently restricted net assets. Unrestricted net assets are not subject to donor-imposed stipulations. The Board of Directors may elect to designate such assets for specific purposes or to have them function as endowment. This designation may be removed at the Board's discretion. Temporarily restricted net assets are subject to donor-imposed stipulations that will be met either by actions of the Foundation or by the passage of time. Permanently restricted net assets are subject to donor-imposed stipulations that require that they be maintained permanently.

The statement of activities distinguishes changes in net assets from operations from other changes in net assets. Operating activity includes revenues and other support, including investment income generated from short-term investments, as well as long-term investment income designated for operations, and all expenses that are available to provide program services and support the administrative functions of the Foundation. Other charges in net assets include permanently restricted contributions and contributions designated for other purposes by the Board, as well as long-term investment income in excess of (or less than) the Foundation's designated spending rate.

Revenue is reported as increases in unrestricted net assets unless use of the related assets is limited by donor-imposed restrictions. Expenses are reported as decreases in unrestricted net assets. Gains and losses on assets or liabilities are reported as increases or decreases in unrestricted net assets unless their use is restricted by explicit donor stipulation or by law. Expirations of temporary restrictions on net assets are reported as net assets released from restrictions.
