A Guide to Your Community

Compiled and edited by Free Library of Philadelphia staff

Acknowledgments

We, the Free Library of Philadelphia's Prison and Reentry Services Program would like to acknowledge and thank you, Titus Moolathara, for laying the groundwork for a sound prison and reentry program. This iteration of Bridges was made within the framework of Mr. Moolathara's previous work. Mr. Moolathara, we thank you for your pioneering work within the Free Library system and for your continued support.

We are thankful for the welcoming embrace of Philadelphia's reentry community. Thank you to the Office of Reentry Partnerships and the Philadelphia Reentry Coalition for collaborating with us on this project. We also thank the Institute for Community Justice, Books Through Bars, and the Defender's Association for being among the first grassroots organizations to work with us.

Our work cannot be done without the collective reentry community. We thank the many people we've connected with. The stewards of this reentry program strive forward everyday to mindfully broaden the reach of our services. One day, every Philadelphian impacted by the justice system will be empowered with the information access needed to shape their own destiny with a Free Library of Philadelphia library card, no matter what systemic barriers may be in place.

About the Reentry Guide

The Free Library of Philadelphia's Prison and Reentry Services Program is proud to be relaunching Bridges: A Guide To Your Community! Bridges is a step towards realizing a dream where every reentrant uses the Free Library of Philadelphia as their gateway to possibilities. This guide supports the reintegration needs of Philadelphia's justice-impacted citizens. Bridges lists various organizations that arrange access to services and programs for housing, employment, healthcare, and more. We encourage reentrants looking for support to use this guide as a starting point to gain access to the support services they need.

With 54 locations, reentrants can access Free Library of Philadelphia resources throughout the city. Returning citizens can browse our Career Training Database to search for job-training opportunities, access our self-paced high school equivalency platform, participate in our enrichment programs, and more. Please visit a location near you or visit our website today!
